SEPTEMBER 4, 2011

Hurricane Irene outdone by St. Irene!

We have all been so blessed in that the hurricane was not worse or more dangerous than it was. I do believe we had a providential Sabbath on our hands. Granted no power and spoiled food is neither great nor inexpensive, but there have been many blessings and graces through all this. As I reflect I can recall:

- Neighbors checking in and helping each other in ways not seen in many years.
- Families all spending time together without technology. Board games and conversation ruled the day.
- An increased awareness of our vulnerability and complete reliance on God for everything every day.
- A realization that as important as the internet and phones are (and they are to be sure!) we can manage to get by and live without them. They are not as necessary as love, family and food.
- A reminder of the power of nature that is a reflection of the power of God.

Here in our parish we sustained a lot of downed trees and debris but no major damage. Our new roof, shingles and siding is 100% intact. We should even be more grateful that the restoration had been finished before the storm.

Thanks to the many who volunteered to help the parish and others and even opened their homes if there was a need. Your thoughtfulness and generosity is unbounded. Thanks to the many who filled our churches on the vigil masses and joined us in prayer from home. A few brave souls, who live nearby, made it to the quiet Sunday morning masses at St. Thomas More. Fr. Fisette and I offered four masses during the storm for our parish family and our area.

I thought it would be good to invoke St. Irene to intercede for us (and she did!). For trivia sake she lived in the year 379 AD and was the sister of Pope (and saint) Damasus.

She was very close to her mother Laurentia and they often had long prayer vigils together for the unity of the Church that was sorely needed at the time. She is buried in a small church in Rome besides her mother and brother St. Damasus.
